AMSTRAD/SPECTRUM

You start the game just outside the fortress, you must explore the base, searching for the missile activation icons, once one of these has been located you will be presented with a subgame: You must transfer all the coloured discs from one area to another, within the time limit, however you can not place a larger disc over a small one.

You may also come across extra weapon payloads, shields and energy packs, these may be used to your advantage.

Part of the complex is hidden behind, a camouflaged blast wall. At the fortress lowest point, you should use a powerful weapon on the East wall.

Once the game has loaded press fire to start the game. You must battle your way through twenty well defended caverns, before finally facing a massive end of level guardian. Once this has been destroyed you will be transported to the next level. Your fighter is equipped with a number of weapon systems, you may alternate between the available weaponry by tapping the spacebar. Your fighter's weapon payload may be replenished by shooting the numbered oil drums scattered around the complex.
