A CALL TO ACTION

PLANET EARTH.
A mostly useless hunk of rock in a small and otherwise unremarkable solar system inhabited by feeble humans, while self-proclaimed "heroes" offer a meager defense against petty, small-minded villains with unimaginative schemes and ambitions.

Still, it is a planet not entirely without potential. With the proper adjustments... this could be a planet worth saving.

And heaven help anyone who gets in my way—hero or villain.

PLAYER RANKING
When you create a new account, you are assigned a player ranking. Everyone starts with the same ranking. Your overall ranking increases or decreases every time you play a game in the Rank Zone. Your ranking increase or decrease is based on the ranking of your opponent. For example, defeating an opponent with a higher ranking causes a larger increase in your ranking than would defeating an opponent with a ranking lower than yours.

Rankings are also generated for tournament play. Every player starts the tournament with the same ranking, and rankings increase or decrease every time you play a game in the tournament. Tournament rankings are tracked only inside of the tournament—they do not affect your overall ranking.

Ranks of all players are displayed on the Marvel Trading Card Game website. Select rankings are also displayed in the online lobby screens.

DECK EDITOR

CARD LIBRARIES AND DECKS

The game has two distinct card libraries—one for local play and one for online play.

LOCAL (SINGLE PLAYER/LAN/AD-HOC) CARD LIBRARY AND DECKS

The card library used in Story Mode, Challenge Mode, LAN, and ad-hoc games is accumulated by playing games in Story Mode.

When you select a path in the Story Mode game, you get an initial starter deck of 60 cards that is tailored to the path you select (Hero or Villain). Use the points you achieve during the Story Mode to buy cards in the single-player Card Store.

You can build and save up to five (5) decks for local play. An additional two decks (Hero Starting Deck and Villain Starting Deck) are available for play in Challenge Mode, LAN, and ad-hoc games. These decks cannot be edited and are not part of your local library.

Cards and decks in the local library cannot be used in online games.

ONLINE CARD LIBRARY

The card library used for online play consists of cards that you purchase in the online card store.

When you activate a new online account, you receive a starter deck that is automatically added to your online library. As you purchase additional cards in the online store, they are added to your online library.

You can build and save up to five (5) constituted decks for online play. There are two additional deck slots available that are used exclusively for tournament decks (one for sealed-deck tournaments and one for constituted-deck tournaments).

You can edit your online decks while you are offline. When you log in, the system synchronizes the local copies of your online decks with those saved in your online account.

Cards and decks in the online library are not available for play in single-player or local multiplayer games.

DECK BUILDING GUIDELINES

Building and refining decks are the keys to success. As you obtain more cards, you can create new decks that are stronger and better suited to specific opponents. Every deck you build must have:

- A minimum of 60 cards (30 for sealed-deck tournaments)
- A maximum of 80 cards.
- No more than 4 copies of each equipment, plot twist, or location.
- No more than 4 copies of a character with the same version. (Characters with the version “Army” are unlimited.)

CARD GAME RULES

This is a brief introduction to the rules and gameplay of the VS system card game. Although these instructions will provide you with the basics needed to get started, we encourage you to play the in-game tutorials for a more advanced view of the game.

STARTING THE GAME

When the match begins, the game randomly selects a player. The selected player decides who goes first on Turn 1.

Each player starts the game with 50 endurance points. The game ends when one player’s endurance total falls to 0 or below at the end of a turn. The player with the highest score at the end of the game wins.

At the start of the game, you are dealt four cards. You can keep these cards or you can “Mulligan”—put the cards on the bottom of your deck in any order and draw four more cards.

SEQUENCE OF PLAY

Each turn is divided into a series of phases and steps.

1. Draw Phase: Both players draw two cards.
2. Build Phase: The player with the initiative on the current turn completes the following three steps in order, then the other player completes the same three steps:
   - Resource Step: Choose a card from your hand and place it in your resource row, face down.
   - Recruit Step: Each resource in your resource row gains one point. You can use these points to recruit characters and equipment.
   - Information Step: Arrange your characters anywhere in your front and support rows.
3. Combat Phase: Starting with the player who has initiative, each player completes their attack step:
   - Attack Step: Each of your characters can attack (See Attacking).
4. Recovery Phase: Each player can recover one stunned character that they control. All other stunned characters are placed in their owners’ KO’d pile. Ready all exhausted cards.

Before starting the next turn, the game checks to see if either player is at zero endurance or below. If so, the player with the highest score is declared the winner.

EQUIPMENT

Your characters can be equipped with these cards to gain new abilities or increase the abilities and statistics they already possess. Like character cards, equipment cards are acquired by paying a number of resource points equal to their refurbish cost.

PLOT TWISTS

Plot twists are situations that affect the characters in the game or the state of the game in general. You can play plot twists from your hand or from your resource row (when they are face-down). In order to play a plot twist, you must have a number of resources in play that is equal to or greater than the cards threshold cost. Playing plot twists doesn't cost you any resource points. You can play a plot twist whenever you have priority (it is your turn to do something).

When you play a plot twist from your hand, it is placed in your KO'd pile when it resolves. When you play one from your resource row, it remains there, face-up, and still counts as a resource.

Ongoing plot twists have continuing effects as long as they remain face-up in your resource row. The effects of face-up plot twists that are not ongoing are ignored after they resolve.
CARD GAME RULES

LOCATIONS
Locations are places in the Marvel universe. Like plot twists, they can affect characters and the state of the game. Locations can only be played (flipped) when they are face-down in your Resource row. In order to flip a location card, you must have a number of resources in play that is equal to or greater than the card’s threshold cost. Flipping locations doesn’t cost you any resource points. You can play a plot twist whenever you have priority (it is your turn to do something).

Like characters, locations are unique. If you flip a location face-up while you control a face-up location with the same name, you must KO the existing location.

CARD POWERS

ATTACKING
When it is your attack step, your character can attack. Each character’s attack is resolved separately (except in the case of a team attack as detailed below).

WHICH CHARACTERS CAN ATTACK?
- Ready characters in your front row.
- Ready characters in your back row that have range.

WHO CAN YOU ATTACK?
- Unprotected characters that are not stunned. (When a support row character is immediately behind a front row character, the support row character is protected and cannot normally be attacked until the protecting front row character is stunned.)
- Protected characters that are not stunned (if the attacker has Flight).
- Your opponent. You attack your opponent directly if you control no characters or if all of their characters are stunned.

DECLARING AN ATTACK
1. Select the character with whom you want to attack, and then select Attack from the character’s Card action menu.
2. Select the character you want to attack.
3. If you want to declare a team attack (see below), select each of the other attackers in the team in turn, and select Team Attack from their Card action menus.

RESOLVING COMBAT
The amount of endurance you and your opponent receive as a result of Combat is determined as follows:
1. If the attacker’s ATK is greater than or equal to the defender’s DEF, the defender becomes stunned. The defender’s Cost is equal to the stunned character’s核算 cost. This is called hit damage.
2. If the attacker’s ATK is greater than the defender’s DEF, the defender’s Cost is equal to the difference. This is called flash damage.
3. If the attacker’s ATK is less than the defender’s ATK, the attacker becomes stunned. The attacker’s Cost is equal to the stunned character’s核算 cost.

Obviously, all three of these situations can result from a single attack.

The game text on character’s and locations represents the card’s powers. When the text includes an attack, that means you can choose when to use that power. Anything before the attack represents the power’s Cost. The text after the attack describes what happens when you pay the cost.

If the cost is active, your card must be ready in order for you to use the power. When you pay the activating cost, the card turns sideways. When a card is sideways, it is exhausted.
When a card is stunned, all of its game text is inactive. Game text on face-down cards that are not stunned is also inactive until the card is flipped face-up.
TEAM ATTACKING

Two or more characters with the same team affiliation can participate in a team attack. When resolving a team attack, the ATK values of all of the attackers are combined and compared to the DEF value of the defender. If the combined ATK is greater than or equal to the defender’s DEF, the defender’s attack power and the defender’s controller take damage. However, no breakthrough damage is ever applied in a team attack.

The defending player can intervene at any time by selecting any card on the chain at any time by selecting the View Chain Detail button. If the defender’s ATK is greater than the DEF of the chosen attack, the attack power and its controller take damage.

REINFORCEMENT

In response to an attack, a friendly support card can be used to reinforce an adjacent defender (one that is on either side of directly in front of it) with the same team affiliation. To reinforce, select the card with which you want to reinforce and then select Reinforce from the card action menu.

The reinforcing character exhausts.

When a defender is reinforced, it can still stun and inflict stun damage. However, all breakthrough damage from the attack is blocked.

POWERING-UP

You can power-up an attack power defender by discarding a character card with the same name from your hand. The powered-up character card gets +1 ATK and +1 DEF for each power-up until the end of the current attack.

To power-up an attack power defender, select the card you want to discard for the power-up, and then select Power-Up from its card action menu.

THE CHAIN AND PRIORITY

Most actions in the game generate effects—by examples, drawing cards, resolving character cards, casting effects, and dealing attacks.

Whenever an effect is generated by an action you initiate, the opponent can respond by playing actions of their own. The game uses a timing system known as the chain to keep track of and resolve the effects generated by player actions. When an effect is generated, it becomes the first “link” in the chain. Each effect played in response becomes another link. When you and your opponent have finished playing effects (both of you pass without adding to the chain), it’s time to start resolving the effects on the chain. Starting with the last (most recent) effect on the chain, each player passes to resolve the effect. More effects can be added during resolution as well.

Putting effects on the chain is governed by the rules of priority. When you have priority, you have the option of playing an effect or passing.

- When a new phase begins, the player with initiative on the current turn has priority.
- When a new step begins, the player whose step it is has priority.
- When an effect resolves from the chain, priority is given to the player whose step it is.

When you put an effect on the chain, you retain priority. You can continue playing effects until you pass. When you pass, your opponent gets priority.

You can examine the effects that are on the chain at any time by selecting the View Chain Detail button. As you highlight each chain effect, the card generating the effect and the targets of the effect are displayed.
