POWER GAUGE

If you throw too many punches you will be out of breath with the effort. This means your heart will beat faster. You will slow down and you will have weaker punches, Power gauge decrease. By defending and holding back with the punches you will recover. Boxers with high stamina ratings recover quicker.

KNOCK DOWN GAUGE

Recover by repeatedly pressing buttons. The fighter will start to rise up once this gauge is full. But the life gauge will be depleted. The larger the damage of the knock down punch, the more you will need to repeatedly press buttons. As the life gauge becomes low, you will need to repeatedly press the buttons as quickly as possible.

A killer point is given to your opponent when he is knocked down. When you have a killer point and you use a special punch to knockdown your opponent then it will have double the impact.

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS

TIPS FOR PUNCHING

Whilst throwing punches make sure each hits the intended target. If you are not accurate then you will leave yourself open to a counter attack by your opponent and judges will mark you down.

TIPS FOR DEFENSE

The best form of defense is getting away from your opponent. A block is the most effective form of defense and offers a good counter attack. Swaying is the quickest form of counter attack but offers less protection.

TIPS FOR FOOTWORK

Your character will not move if you try to use a Directional button and a punch button at the same time. You must be disciplined. Some opponents are masters of the ring space. They will try to control the center of the ring and get you in a corner.
